RELOCATION ASTROLOGY

The same planets, a different rising sign in every place on Earth.
Astrocartography shows where your chart works for you, and where it asks more of you.

Prepared 12 October 2026

How to read your Astrocartography

Arnold, you are in Saturn's main period from February 2026 to February 2045, with Saturn's sub-period until February 2029, then Mercury's sub-period through October 2031. The leading places put Saturn and Mercury to work in supportive ways, so they come first; the order then moves toward more demanding expressions.

At the moment you were born, every point on Earth had a different rising sign. The planets stay in the same signs everywhere. Only the Ascendant moves, and with it every house and every planet's job.

Your Astrocartography maps the twelve bands where each sign rises for you, ranks them for your chart and the periods you are living, and gives each one its own chapter. Then it reads the places you asked about.

Relocation changes which house a planet works through, not what the planet is. Your daśā decides when a planet takes over; a place decides how it shows up. Read the chapters with your periods in mind.

Borders are not sharp. Four minutes of error in the birth time move every line by about 1° of longitude, roughly 100 km. Treat a place within a degree or two of a border as belonging to both signs.

Method and limits

Calculated with Swiss Ephemeris, sidereal zodiac, Lahiri ayanamsa, true node and whole-sign houses: the same engine and the same conventions as every Logicosmo reading for you.

The world map samples your sidereal Ascendant at every whole degree of latitude and longitude between 73°N and 58°S, at your birth instant, and draws its contours. Beyond those latitudes the Ascendant changes too fast to be useful.

Planet rising lines are drawn in the zodiac: where the rising degree equals the planet's sidereal longitude.

Astrocartography sites draw lines by a planet's actual rising in the sky, which can sit a few hundred kilometres away for planets far from the ecliptic.

Classical Jyotiṣa does not use relocated charts. Astrocartography is a modern extension of the classical method. It describes tendencies a place brings out in your chart; it does not predict events, and it is not a reason on its own to move.

The order of the chapters comes from Logicosmo's experimental relocation score.
